REPORT

FOR THE

YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31ST, 1872.

THE London Fever Hospital has, during the year 1872, fairly entered upon a new phase of its existence. After an interval of more than fifty years, during which it has received all cases of supposed contagious fever brought to its doors, it has, in consequence of the provision made for paupers in the Fever Asylums at Homerton and Stockwell, reverted to its original purpose as a Hospital for Fever occurring in persons not receiving parish relief. The present Report, therefore, has not the public interest and importance of those of previous years, which furnished the best, if not the only index of the degree of prevalence of different forms of fever in the metropolis, while there has, moreover, been necessarily a great diminution in the numbers admitted. The admissions have been 182 as compared with 1,324 in 1871 and 3,487 in 1872. Of these, 85 were males, 97 females; 148 were examples of one or other kind of fever, 34 were other diseases supposed to be fever.

The following tables show the number of cases of fever admitted, and their distribution throughout the year :—

The number of cases of Typhus Fever has been very small—only 8, 6 of these being admitted in January: they all recovered. This is a form of fever which will now rarely be seen at the Fever Hospital, as it prevails almost exclusively among the destitute classes, and finds the main conditions of its propagation in overcrowding, dirt, and want. As has been shown in previous Reports, Typhus was epidemic in London from 1862 to 1871, but declined in the last two or three years of this period; and it has apparently subsided even more rapidly in 1872, as the Homerton Fever Asylum* received only 82 cases in the twelve months ending Sept. 30th, 1872, while at the Fever Hospital the admissions in 1871 were 411; in 1870, 631; in 1869, 1,260.

* The statistics of the Stockwell Asylum were not made public at the time of going to press.

No case of Relapsing Fever has been seen during the year. It is related even more closely than Typhus to poverty and want, as is evident from the name, Famine Fever, which has been given to it. A few cases have been reported during the autumn and winter in different parts of London, but it has obtained no footing as an epidemic; and, as with Typhus, it is only when it prevails largely that it may be expected to reach by contagion the classes who will in future seek admission into the Fever Hospital.

Of Enteric Fever there have been 44 cases admitted, of which 16 were males, 28 females. This fever, as is well known, affects all classes, and other reasons than those which explain the disappearance of Typhus from the wards of the Hospital, are required to account for the great diminution in the admissions, which in 1870 were 308. It would be premature to consider these causes until a longer experience has shown how far the fall in numbers is permanent, and especially until the returns of the Pauper Asylums for the autumn of 1872 are published. But it would be consistent with what has been uniformly observed at this Hospital, to conclude that the short summer and the early and abundant rain-fall of autumn, continued into the winter, had greatly diminished Enteric Fever throughout London; and this is confirmed by the Registrar-General's Reports, which have shown an extraordinarily low fever- as well as general death-rate—the deaths from "Zymotic" diseases, among which fevers are grouped, being for many consecutive weeks from 100 to 200 less per week than the average. The number of deaths from Enteric Fever during the year has been 9, in the cases of 6 males and 3 females. The mortality per cent. of those treated to the termination of the disease is thus 15. Deducting one case which died within twenty-four hours of admission, the mortality is 13.5 per cent.

The following tables give the usual information respecting Enteric Fever:—

Scarlatina has furnished the largest number of admissions during the year, namely, 32 males and 36 females, making a total of 68. It is not unlikely that this may continue to be the case, as from its known contagious character there is more urgent and more fully recognised need for the isolation of cases, and for their removal from families and establishments. There has, however, been a considerable diminution in the number of cases admitted, but no data are available for determining how far this is due to diminished prevalence of the disease. Evidence of such diminution is found in the small number received in twelve months into the Homerton Asylum compared with the number admitted into the Fever Hospital in 1871 (268) and 1872 (912). The number of deaths from Scarlatina among the cases treated to their termination during the year has been 6, or 7·6 per cent.; 3 were males, and 3 females, the mortality per cent. being—for males 9·2, for females 6·5.

The following tables give the number of cases of Scarlatina occurring at different ages, and the complications observed:—

N.B.—The discrepancy between the number given in table on p. 6 and this table, is caused by the fact that several of these patients had two or more diseases.

Seven cases have been treated in the private wards during the year. Of Enteric Fever, 2 males; of Scarlatina, 2 females and 1 male; of Measles, 1 male; and of Tonsillitis and General Debility, 1 female. They all recovered.

In the month of June, Mr. Cheyne, who had for upwards of two years most efficiently filled the office of Resident Medical Officer, resigned, having remained, at some sacrifice of personal convenience, sufficiently long to superintend the reorganisation of the Hospital on the reduced basis rendered necessary by the withdrawal of the paupers. The Committee desire publicly to acknowledge the high sense they entertain of the value of his services, more especially when the organisation and resources of the Institution were taxed by the great epidemic of Relapsing Fever. He was succeeded by Mr. Tilly, who resigned in November; and the office is now held by Mr. George Turner.

The small number of patients admitted during the year, as compared with the accommodation which the Hospital is calculated to afford, has occasioned to your Committee, and especially to those members who as House Directors are more immediately concerned in the management of the Institution, much anxious consideration. The Hospital, as originally erected on the present site, had space for 200 beds. To this was added in 1866 a permanent building for 60 beds; and temporary erections, now removed, at one time enabled it to receive over 400 patients. One wing only is now in use, which has permitted a reduction in the staff of nurses, who are now only four in number, a corresponding reduction being made in the scrubbers and other servants. Nurse Paddington, who has been nineteen years in the service of the Hospital, discharges the duties of Matron with great efficiency, as well as those of the head of the active nursing department. With great regret, also, it was considered necessary to request the Secretary to accept a considerable reduction in his salary, to which he promptly assented ; and in every way it has been sought to reduce the expenditure. In spite of these economies, the care and oversight and inevitable repairs of so large a building will make the establishment expenses large in proportion to the number of patients, if anything like the present rate is found to be the average.

The Hospital, although its field of operations is narrowed, is as necessary as ever for the reception of employés in houses of business, domestic servants, artisans and their families, &c. It is considered right to maintain the admission fee in the case of servants, assistants in business houses, &c., of non-subscribers removed to the Hospital for the safety and convenience of masters and their families ; but it is desired to facilitate the free admission of members of the working classes, and no case is sent away for non-payment or for want of a governor's letter of recommendation. It cannot be known yet what the demands from these sources will be : the past year cannot be taken as affording a reliable basis for calculation. It is certain that fever generally has been much less prevalent than for many years past, and probable that the forms of fever likely to affect the classes who require hospital accommodation, and are not provided for by the Pauper Fever Asylums, have also been at an extremely low point. There have always been fluctuations in the numbers admitted. For example—in the years 1868 and 1870 they were 3,858 and 3,878 respectively ; in the years 1860 and 1862, 424 and 663. It is true the great difference was constituted by Typhus or Relapsing Fever, which affect paupers chiefly ; but very great variations have been seen in the admissions for Scarlatina and Enteric Fever. In 1871, 912 cases of Scarlet Fever were treated—in 1860 only 96 ; in 1870, 595 cases of Enteric Fever were admitted—in 1860 only 94. It may, moreover, happen, under the pressure of some future epidemic, that the sanitary authorities may desire to avail themselves of the provisions of the Public Health Act, which authorises them to send to a fever hospital cases of fever not requiring parish relief, and the Hospital might in this case be fully occupied. But if this Institution should be in future unable to attain the almost unparalleled usefulness of the past ten years, its mission—the prevention and cure of Contagious Fever—remains unimpaired; and if, through the happy circumstance (on which the Committee congratulate the public) that little fever exists in London at present,* its work is for a time in abeyance, the past services, which have been of immense value to the community, and the certain need in the future of the accommodation it offers, must be borne in mind as a claim for continued support.

The Committee desire to place on record, with sincere gratitude, the munificence of an unknown contributor, who, under the initials "C. R. W.," had in previous years made three several donations of £1,000 each, and has also, in the year 1872, given a fourth sum of a like amount; and in this, the only way open to it, to tender its warmest thanks.

* At the Annual General Meeting it was stated by Surgeon-Major Bostock, one of the Managers of the Pauper Asylums, that there were not forty cases of fever in the two.

LONDON FEVER HOSPITAL,

LIVERPOOL ROAD, ISLINGTON.

LAWS AND REGULATIONS.

Objects of the Institution.

1. ALL poor persons (not being parochial paupers) and domestic servants of subscribers, labouring under contagious fever, and residing in the metropolis or its neighbourhood, shall be considered proper objects for this charity, and shall be admitted gratuitously, according to the next regulation. Parochial paupers, domestic servants of non-subscribers, and all inmates of other public charities (except medical hospitals), shall be admitted on the payment of such sum for each patient as the Committee shall from time to time determine.

2. On application for the admission of any patient to the Hospital, notice shall be immediately given to the resident medical officer, and the person after inspection may be admitted by an order signed by him, or on a certificate signed by any physician, surgeon, or apothecary, stating the disease to be fever of a contagious nature, or likely to become such. The order or certificate shall entitle the patient to admission, subject to the provisions contained in Rule No. 1, unless the case shall be deemed an improper one by the resident medical officer, or unless the Hospital shall be full.

Governors.

3. All subscribers of one guinea annually, or of ten guineas in one donation, shall be governors of this Hospital.

General Meeting and Election of the Committee.

4. A general meeting of the governors, of which ten days' previous notice must be given in three morning newspapers, shall be held every year, on the second Friday in February, or as near thereto as may be convenient, for the purpose of approving or rescinding the proceedings of the Committee for the preceding year; for receiving an annual report of the state of the funds; and for electing a president, vice-presidents, treasurer, honorary secretary, and other members of the Committee for the ensuing year. At all meetings connected with the affairs of the Hospital, a simple majority of the governors present and voting shall bind the minority; and in case of equality of votes, the chairman shall have an additional vote or casting vote.

5. A special general meeting of the governors may at any time be called by direction of the president or of the Committee; or on the requisition of any twelve governors, provided the requisition be made in writing to the secretary, and the purpose for which the same is summoned be published in three morning newspapers at least ten days prior to the next meeting; but the proceedings of such special general meeting, though acted upon pro tempore, shall not be deemed final, until confirmed by another general meeting.

6. No new rule or law shall be made, nor shall any existing rule or law be repealed or altered, until determined upon at a general meeting by a majority of governors present and voting, and until confirmed at a subsequent general or special meeting.

7. The presence of seven governors shall be necessary to constitute a quorum at general meetings, and without that number no business shall be transacted.

8. At the annual general meeting, a Committee for the management of the Institution shall be elected, consisting of the president, the vice-presidents, the treasurer, honorary secretary, and twenty-four other governors; four of which governors shall not have been members of the preceding Committee. They shall meet on the last Friday, or on such other day of every month as the Committee may appoint; and three members shall be necessary to constitute a meeting, and to transact business. A special meeting of the Committee may be called by the direction of the treasurer, or by any three members of the Committee, on giving at least three days' notice of the same, and specifying the business for which it is called.

9. The Committee shall have authority to appoint sub-committees, whose reports shall be submitted to their consideration; they shall elect all the officers, except the physicians of the Hospital and the honorary secretary, who shall be elected by the governors at large; and, with the assistance of the medical officers, shall form regulations and bye-laws for the internal management of the Hospital.

10. The resolutions of one meeting of the Committee shall not be rescinded by another, unless it be specially summoned for that purpose. 11. The Committee shall yearly publish a report of the state of the Hospital.

Two of the directors to form a quorum.

16. They shall from time to time cause the beds, clothes, and apparel belonging to the Hospital to be examined, and shall report thereon, if necessary, to the Committee. 17. They shall be authorised in all respects to enforce the observance of the regulations of the Hospital; they shall notice and report to the Committee any irregularity or misconduct on the part of the officers, servants, or patients of the charity, and shall, at every meeting of the Committee, cause a statement of the house expenditure to be produced for the preceding month. They shall appoint the porters, nurses, and other menial servants of the Hospital, and dismiss them for misconduct.

24. He shall superintend the patients between the visits of the physicians, and the dispensary shall be exclusively under his control. In the absence of the Committee and house-directors, he shall be recognised as the head of the establishment.

25. Accurate registers of the patients admitted, as well as of the remedies employed for their recovery, shall be kept, which registers shall be the property of the Hospital; he shall produce a special report every month, to be laid before the Committee.

26. When the number of patients shall be great, a medical assistant shall be appointed by the house-directors, subject to the confirmation of the Committee, and he shall receive such remuneration as the Committee shall from time to time determine.

Honorary Secretary.

27. There shall be an honorary secretary, who shall also be a member of the Committee, and chosen annually with them. He shall be at liberty to attend all deputations to public bodies and private persons. He shall also assist the treasurer in the discharge of his duties when necessary.

28. The duties of this officer shall be to reside in the Hospital, if required by the Committee, and, in the absence of the house-directors, to have the management of the domestic affairs of the Hospital, under the general superintendence of the resident medical officer. He shall be required to enter into a bond, with sufficient sureties, for the due and faithful performance of his duties. He shall also perform the several duties specified in the bye-laws.
